driven to a break. He has that pure and apparently effortless action that characterizes his sire, who inherits it from his famous grand sire, Ethan Allen—an action that seems to enable him to steal from quarter-pole to quarter-pole by merely wishing himself there.

In the 2:34 class, at Poughkeepsie, the elegant black stallion Warren by Aristos came to the front in three straight, every heat being won in 2:26. He is evidently a trotter of very great merit. Aristos rather had things his own way at Poughkeepsie, only two of his get being entered, and they each winning in straight heats. Warren is the sixth of the get of Aristos to enter the 2:30 list, and there are plenty more to follow. Ben Franklin has the same number.

The gray mare Julia C. (2:29) turns out to be by Abraham, son of Daniel Lambert, as stated last week. She was bred by the late William H. Ellis of Middlebury. Will some of our readers who know give us the breeding of her dam? Addison county, for one whose breeders have been pitted so much for not knowing how to breed trotters, is doing reasonably well. It has furnished in the new 2:30 list Gilling, 2:23, by Aristos by Daniel Lambert, bred by W. W. Moore, Shoreham.

May, 2:25, by Ben Franklin by Daniel Lambert, bred by A. J. Hough, Orwell.

Bessie H., 2:23, by Abraham by Daniel Lambert, bred by Mr. Hall, Cornwall.

Julia C., 2:29, by Abraham by Daniel Lambert, bred by W. H. Ellis, Middlebury.

N. O. D., 2:30, by Ben Franklin by Daniel Lambert, bred by Nelson O'Donnell, Orwell.

Whether Henry C. (pacer) 2:29, by Ben Franklin, and Warren, 2:26, by Aristos, were bred in Addison county we are not informed; but the above string is a fair showing for a little county with only 24,000 inhabitants. What other county as small has done better; and what other sire save Lambert has three sons that have already contributed seven new performers to the 2:30 list this season? We are still wearing those "antique blue glass spectacles," dear brother of the Mirror, but when we turn them in the direction of those wisecracks that have been exhorting us to throw away our Lamberts and begin to breed trotters, we perceive a tinge of green.

PADDY.

[From American Cultivator.]

The old BOSTON CULTIVATOR of Nov. 29, 1862, contains an article from the pen of the late Sanford Howard, a man deeply interested in fine stock, and who was then agricultural editor of the Cultivator. This article contains the following extract from a letter written to Mr. Howard by John Bellows, dated at Exeter, N. H., Feb. 6, 1855: "In relation to the horse called Paddy," says Mr. Bellows, "I purchased him in the month of July, 1829, and kept him as a teaser to Sherman Morgan in 1830. I sold him to George Bothwell of Northumberland, N. H., in the autumn of 1830, and never owned or kept him a day afterwards. Bothwell sold him somewhere in the State of Rhode Island in 1831, as I am informed."

It will be noticed that Mr. Bellows is positive concerning the dates when he bought and sold Paddy, as well as the name and residence of the party to whom he sold the horse. In regard to the sale of the horse by Mr. Bothwell, Mr. Bellows says he was informed that such was the case. In a letter written by Mr. Bellows to E. H. Hoffman, Esq., Lyndon, Vt., in 1879 (twenty-four years after the above was penned), replying to a question asked him Mr. Hoffman concerning the story that Paddy got Black Hawk, Mr. B. wrote: "I had sold Paddy two years before Black Hawk was got, and he had gone to Rhode Island, I believe." Mr. Hoffman informs us that he lately learned from a member of the Bothwell family that George Bothwell then had a son in Rhode Island who was in a livery stable either as proprietor or employee. Mr. Bothwell doubtless sent Paddy to this son, as stated by Mr. Bellows. We have made no effort to trace the horse in Rhode Island, for as he never got a distinguished animal in his life his history is not of the slightest interest to any one.

Mr. Bellows, as we have already stated, was a very methodical business man. During an interview with him some years since, he remarked that his old stud books had been carefully preserved, and were still in existence somewhere among his old papers in New Hampshire. We have at last succeeded, after the expenditure of considerable time and money, in obtaining possession of several of these, including those of Paddy and Sherman Morgan. These books corroborate the above statements of Mr. Bellows in every particular. Among the papers is a note which Mr. Bellows evidently took from Mr. Bothwell in part payment for Paddy. This note is dated Aug. 9, 1830, which was doubtless the exact date when Paddy became the property of Mr. Bothwell. Only two mares were bred to Paddy in 1829 after Mr. Bellows bought him.

During the season of 1830 Paddy received in all eleven patrons owned by the following parties: Humphrey Grant, Berwick, David Odorne, Somersworth (the latter's mare was blind); Oliver S. Horne, Dover; Stephen Chesley, Madbury; Thomas Ross, Gilmanton; Joseph Elliot, Madbury (white-faced mare); William Hight, South Berwick (Noble's mare); John Wheeler, Dover (old mare); Goodwin Stinson, Portsmouth; Andrew Goodwin, South Berwick, and Stephen Morse, Holderness. The terms ranged from $5 to $7 to warrant. Some are charged $5, others $7, and others $7 minus $2, others $7 minus seventy cents.

The date of the first charge item in Paddy's account that year is May 29, and the last July 31. No charge for Paddy's services occurs in any of the stud books later than the last date mentioned. A memorandum in the last part of the book is as follows:

"1830, Paddy Horse got five colts, $30 received."

It appears from a receipted bill now before us that George Bellows had charge of these horses part or all of the time during the season of 1830. One of the first items in the bill is for taking care of Paddy Horse.

Early in the spring of 1831 negotiations were opened by Samuel Jacques, proprietor of Ten Hills Farm, Charlestown, Mass., to have Sherman Morgan stand at his establishment during that season, as appears by the following letter from Mr. Jacques, now before us:

CHARLESTOWN, March 24, 1831.

"Mr. John Bellows:

"Dear Sir—Your favor of the 18th inst. is received, contents noted. The contemplated establishment which you have mentioned I expect to commence in about ten days. To give you some views of the proposed establishment, I will refer you to some communications in a paper printed in Boston, March 12, 1831, called the Evening Gazette, which paper I have taken the liberty to forward to you. You will readily perceive the responsibility and public expectation. Stud and herd books of all animals coming to the Ten Hills Farm, either as breeders or for sale, will be particularly attended to. Therefore I wish particularly to be understood that I shall require a correct certificate of age, pedigree, etc. (as the nature of the case will admit), of every animal brought to my establishment either as a breeder or for sale.

"As respects your Sherman Morgan Horse. I think he would do well at the Ten Hills Farm. I have no hesitation in saying that I consider the race of horses so generally known in our vicinity by the name of Morgans to be one of the most useful kind of horses for all common purposes to New England that there is in this or any other country.

"Should you be disposed to send your Sherman Morgan Horse to my Ten Hills Farm, I will keep him one year, and endeavor to do him ample justice in all respects, and will pay you one half the amount received for his covering mares. Should you conclude to send him, the sooner the better. I hope he is not so old as to be past his usefulness as a foal getter. This you know best about. Let certificate of his age and pedigree accompany him, also his caparison if he has any. On receipt of this let me hear from you.

"Respectfully, SAMUEL JACQUES.

"P. S.—One or two Morgan mares I think would find ready sale."

He stands 16 hands high and is a beautiful chestnut and well proportioned. He has won three successive races without losing a heat, with a large field of horses against him at Burlington, Plattsburgh and Lake George. He has the size, style and speed combined which farmers want in a horse. He is a large carriage horse, bringing a high price, while small horses go a begging for a buyer at a less price. Come and see him, as there is not another stallion of his age in this vicinity that has won the same number of races without losing a heat. He was got by Aristos, 2:27; toiled June, 1888. Dress the Hair

With Ayer's Hair Vigor. Its cleanliness, beneficial effects on the scalp, and lasting perfume commend it for universal toilet use. It keeps the hair soft and silken, preserves its color, prevents it from falling, and, if the hair has become weak or thin, promotes a new growth.

"To restore the original color of my hair, which had turned prematurely gray, I used Ayer's Hair Vigor with entire success. I cheerfully testify to the

of this preparation."—Mrs. P. H. Davidson, Alexandria, La.

"I was afflicted some three years with scalp disease. My hair was falling out, and what remained turned gray. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in a few weeks the disease in my scalp disappeared and my hair resumed its original color and growth. I am, S. Sims, Pastor U. B. Church, St. Bernard, Ind.

"A few years ago I suffered the entire loss of my hair from the effects of tetter. I hoped that after a time nature would repair the loss, but I waited in vain. Many remedies were suggested, none, however, with such proof of merit as Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began to use it. The result was all I could have desired. A growth of hair soon came out all over my head, and grew to be as soft and heavy as I ever had, and of a natural color, and finally set."—J. H. Pratt, Spofford, Texas.

RHEUMATISM

For More than Twenty-five Years—A Complete Recovery.—The Means Used.

I had Inflammatory Rheumatism. For nearly a year I had to be fed and turned in bed. I could find no relief. My stomach was ruined and cut to pieces with powerful medicines taken to effect a cure so that I was compelled to live on bread and water. I suffered for twenty-five years in this way. I was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y., and thanks to this medicine. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is my best friend. With it I am enabled to enjoy a good night's rest. Also food, such as meat and pastry, which I have been deprived of for years, showing that the Favorite Remedy has no equal for the cure of Indigestion and Dyspepsia as well. If any should doubt this statement I will send the ready proof at once.—Garrett Lansing, Troy, N. Y.

It is my pleasure and absolute duty toward those who are struggling for very life against the deadly to add my testimony to the already weighty evidence of the wonderful efficacy of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. My wife was a hopeless case, abandoned by the physicians. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was resorted to; not because any hope was placed in it, but because nothing else remained. All means and medicines had been tested without avail. The effect was little short of a miracle. At the second bottle she had regained strength, and continuing the treatment has fully recovered.—Jas Sweet, Albany, N. Y.

A BASTILE CENTENNIAL.

HOW THE 14TH OF JULY WILL BE CELEBRATED IN VARIOUS PLACES.

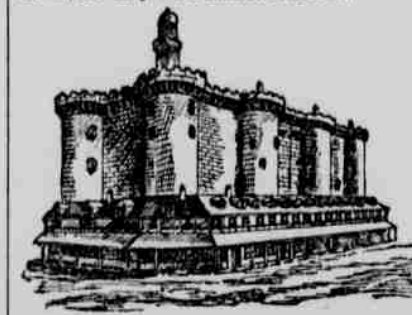

In France All Classes Join, but in New York the Anarchists Will Claim the Day. Freemen Generally Celebrate It as Independence Day.

This is indeed the year of centennials. It may be said in a broader sense that this is the era of antenials, beginning with that of the Declaration of American Independence, 1776, and ending with that (the Fourth) of the discovery of America in 1892. By an odd coincidence the momentous events appear to concentrate from both extremes towards the center of this era, but the year 1889 includes more noteworthy centennials, both in France and America, than any other in the century.

What a very remarkable year that of 1789 was. A devout mind might say that providence was instructing France and America that they should unite in the cause of freedom and good government. Early in the year the first president of the United States was elected and the royal mandates went out to collect the old French "parlement"—the states general, that had not met since 1614. April 6, the first American congress under the constitution met; April 30 George Washington was inaugurated; May 5 the states general met in Paris; June 20 to 25 the representatives of the French people declared against the king and the revolution began; July 4, the American congress passed its general revenue act, and July 14 the people of Paris stormed and captured the Bastille.

Wonderful year indeed. The United States is doing centennializing for this time, and will not resume till 1892, but the French are but fairly begun, and the 14th of July is their grandest day. They have partially restored the old Bastille, as if for the pleasure of battering it again, but experience shows that it is difficult to maintain old national hatreds after all the old fears have passed away.

Of course all men of any reading whatever know a great deal about the Bastille and the French revolution, and even those who cannot read know something, for the name is a popular proverb. Every one knows that a "bastille" is a prison where one may be held a long time without trial, but few know how fully the Paris prison filled the description, and how completely its capture demonstrated that the people had risen at last, and would no more endure the old tyranny. One item will show the whole state of the case. The reign of Louis XVI had been singularly mild, and when the people forced the Bastille doors they found only seven prisoners. Only seven men, forgotten of mankind, unregistered in any court, their prison unknown to their friends, and their history unknown even to themselves, for they were almost imbecile.

THE BASTILLE.

Consider, American reader, who thinks the French were unduly severe in their revolution, consider these cases: The first prisoner brought out was the Count de Solage, who did not know how old he was or what year it was, but distinctly remembered that he was 11 years old when first imprisoned. And so it proved when a few surviving friends were found. The next man dragged to the light was Tavernier, who quivered like an aspen in the sunshine, covered his eyes and cried with pain. He could not speak—his tongue was atrophied for want of use. He could not understand what was said, it was so long since he heard words. He had spent thirty years in a dungeon of the Bastille, and before that ten years as a convict at the Marguerite Islands, and no one knew his offense. The other five were "ordinary cases"—that is, they had suffered only a few years and could still talk and smile and understand what was said to them.

And this, be it noted, was but yesterday as it were, in an enlightened age, under the mild rule of that king who was the patron of Franklin, the admirer of Jefferson, the ally of Washington. It was in the reign of Louis XIV, and just previously that the Bastille was such a place of horror. And so well were its black secrets guarded that the horrors of it were not known till a short time before its destruction. The building was begun in 1369 by Charles V, and counted in succeeding reigns; it was situated at the gate to St. Antoine and consisted of eight huge round towers connected by solid masonry. By degrees it became a sort of "catch all," a prison in which could be confined, by a mere order and without examination, any man suspected of treason, any enemy of any powerful courtier, any one who gave offense to or stood in the way of the powerful—in short, any one who could not be convicted in the regular courts.

July 14, 1789, it was garrisoned by a governor in command of eighty-two invalid soldiers and thirty-two Swiss when the people, who looked on it as the embodiment of arbitrary power, made their attack. The defense was not very vigorous and there was little loss of life. The next day the towers were razed and the lower dungeons filled with the debris.

The French are not the only ones to celebrate the radicals in many parts of the world will jubilate and the Anarchists of the United States will "demonstrate." They propose on that day to hold in New York a grand anarchical congress and revolutionary centennial, and say that 15,000 Anarchists will be present. They expect to make a "red hot demonstration" and hint that they will make it unpleasant for those who interfere.

Hon. Charles L. Knapp.

The Hon. Charles L. Knapp, who was recently appointed consul general from the United States to the dominion of Canada, was born in Har-burgh, Lewis county, N. Y., and is about 41 years old. He was graduated from Rutgers college, New Brunswick, N. J.; also from the law school of Hamilton college. Since 1873 he has practiced law with good results. In 1880-87 he was a member of the New York state senate, and took an active part in the campaigns of 1884 and 1888, being a very good stump speaker. The diplomatic relations of the United States and Canada are carried on through the foreign office in London. Still Mr. Knapp will have plenty to do, all the way from the seizure of fishing vessels up to the extradition of criminals.
